Fairport, N.Y. — The digital models of what the village of Fairport could look like in the future are now available to view online.

It has been one year since the Fairport Office of Community and Economic Development, OCED, held its first public meeting with residents to brainstorm development concepts for redesigning the Northwest Quadrant of the village.

The final visuals were presented in digital 3-D to the Village Board of Trustees in September. Two videos of the virtual tour are now available online via the OCED website.

The visuals are only "templates" of what the NEQ could become, but they provide a model that OCED hopes to use as funding becomes available for individual projects.

The Northwest Quadrant is bound by the canal to the south, Whitney Road to the north, Main Street to the east, and LiDestri Foods to the west.

Each video shows a street-level view of the proposed redevelopment as well as a bird's-eye view from above.

Kal Wysokowski, OCED executive director, said she is excited about the possibilities for future development.

"Being able to map out development options in a 3-D model will help us visualize different scenarios and share them with interested developers," she said in a statement.
